

THREE ESCAPE AND TWO ARE CAUGHT

Prisoners at Jail Farm Make Use of Horse and Buggy

Escaping from custody at the Jail Farm, Sunday evening three prisoners stole a horse and buggy and drove to the city. Last night two of them were captured, and the police were confident that they would apprehend the third within a short time.

Sunday evening the engineer used a horse and rig to drive him from the farm. When he returned he left the outfit standing outside the institute for the stableman to take to the barn. In the meantime he entered the building, and while there, the three men made a dash for freedom, and jumping into the carriage drove across the farm at a fast rate of speed.

The jail-breakers had half an hour start before the horse was missed. The roll was immediately called and it was found that three prisoners were missing. The Toronto police were at once notified and given a description of the men.

At five o'clock yesterday morning the horse and buggy was found by the police standing in Queen's Park. A careful search of the city was made during the day, with the result that last night Hugh Iyer and Ernest Young were arrested by Detective McConnell. The third man is a returned soldier with a leg off. The two men will be charged in Police Court this morning with escaping from custody.

GRIPPE TAKES FOUR AT MOUNT ALBERT

The Two Doctors There Have Heavy Demands Upon Them

In Mount Albert four deaths have occurred from influenza and pneumonia over the week-end, and there are several patients seriously ill. There is no local hospital, so the cases have to be looked after entirely in private homes. There are only two doctors in the village for over a hundred cases.

The situation in Markham is still serious. Mrs. Roy Crosby, wife of the Secretary of the Toronto Milk and Cream Producers' Association, died on Sunday night.

In Newmarket the epidemic is showing signs of abatement. No new cases were reported yesterday, and several of the more serious cases are improving.

ROSS BODELL DIES FROM PNEUMONIA

Commercial Supervisor of G.N.W. Telegraph Co. Passes Away

Ross Bodell, Commercial Supervisor of the G.N.W. Telegraph Company, died at his home, 28 Kennedy avenue, last night, from the effects of influenza.

Mr. Bodell started work as an operator with the G.N.W. thirteen years ago, and worked his way up until six years ago he was given his present position. Two weeks ago he contracted influenza, which later developed into pleuro-pneumonia. Death took place last night from heart failure.

He leaves a wife, but no children. His father, Mr. William Bodell, lives at 235 Fern avenue.

WILL SEE CHINESE CONSUL

J. M. Ling, Chinese court interpreter of Winnipeg, who was arrested on Sunday night in a raid upon the Chinese National League at 105 1/2 Queen street west, made by Detective Inspector Kennedy and Detective Maurer, left last night for Ottawa to bring the case of the local Chinese before the Chinese Consul-General.
