

LIEUT. EDGECOMBE KILLED

The Globe (1844-1936); Oct 12, 1918; ProQuest Historical Newspapers: The Globe and Mail
pg. 4

"FLU" AT CAPETOWN.

Capetown, Oct. 11.—An epidemic of Spanish influenza is spreading with alarming rapidity in Capetown and other sections of South Africa. The situation is becoming increasingly serious in the native quarter of Capetown, where whole households are lying helpless.

LIEUT. EDGECOMBE KILLED.

Fredericton, Oct. 11.—(Special.)—Flight-Lieut. Charles Edgcombe, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Edgcombe of Fredericton, N.B., has been killed in an airplane accident in England. The accident occurred on October 6. Lieut. Edgcombe went overseas only last month.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.